

Oncology Nursing
Certification Corporation
Credibility. Contribution. Care.

Oncology Nursing Certification is Good for Patients

Inspire deep-level trust among patients and families.

A cancer diagnosis is life altering for patients and their families. They want to trust that their treatment team is qualified and prepared to deliver the best possible care. Oncology nursing certification inspires trust between patients and their care providers.

According to ONCC's Value of Certification Study completed in 2023

- 75% of respondents say oncology certification increases patient/consumer confidence.
- 93% of respondents say oncology certification enhances professional credibility.
- 94% of respondents say oncology certification validates specialized knowledge.

In addition, oncology certified nurses agree to adhere to a Code of Ethics that identifies the moral obligations of oncology certified nurses to support and maintain the integrity of the profession to promote the health and well-being of patients and families.

Discover more in the ONCC Value of Certification Study Report.

Learn more about certification in oncology nursing at oncc.org.